“I believe in the Santa Lucia Children’s Home. I have been there, and I have worked closely with those who oversee it. I love those children. This is a great cause, and it needs our support.

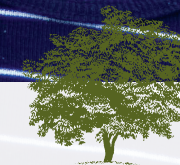

“These children have food, clothing, shelter, and medical care. They have volunteer mothers watching over them. Most importantly, they have friendship, love, support, and hope. And now they have Melaleuca.”

Doing Good Where Good Is Needed

The Melaleuca Foundation was created to do good where good is needed—to enhance lives, to restore hope.

In 2001, The Melaleuca Foundation gathered more than $800,000 to help ease the burdens weighing down some of 9/11's forgotten families. In 2005, just hours after Hurricane Katrina struck, The Melaleuca Foundation sent trucks loaded with relief supplies rumbling toward the Gulf Coast. In the ensuing weeks, the foundation raised more than $1 million for Katrina relief aid.

Since that time, The Melaleuca Foundation has continued to alleviate suffering around the world during times of natural disaster and catastrophe.

Today you have the opportunity to support The Melaleuca Foundation in another special cause—one that enhances the lives of orphaned and abused children.

Your Help Is Needed: The Santa Lucia Children's Home

Step inside the Santa Lucia Children's Home in Quito, Ecuador, and you'll see smiles on many little faces. You'll see gardens full of flowers. You'll see clean living spaces. You're inside a safe haven for children waiting to be welcomed into new, loving homes.

The Melaleuca Foundation is the sole supporter of the Santa Lucia Children's Home—providing everything the children need—food, clothing, shelter, medical care. In return, this orphanage is providing a special example of love and support.

Here, children are placed in separate family groups, where older children can mentor the younger ones, and together build close relationships and feel loved and needed. They have their own living spaces. House mothers watch over each family group.

The Santa Lucia Children's Home has been successful in nursing many children back to health, facilitating numerous adoptions, and enhancing the lives of thousands of children.
